

Why more and more companies are opting for LCL

Increasingly often, companies are opting to use external data centres to reduce their telecom costs. And by working with LCL, they are going for guaranteed power, cooling and connectivity.

Guaranteed power and cooling

A UPS system (Uninterruptible Power Supply) guarantees a permanent supply of power at our two data centres. And various air-conditioning systems with separate cooling water circuits keep the temperature steady at between 20 and 24°C, distributing it evenly over the entire data centre. So your IT systems are in safe hands.

Giga connectivity

Our meet-me-room gives you flawless contact with all of the major carriers. You can choose yourself from every possible type of connection: MPLS, IP-VPN, Internet backbone providers (IP Transit), Voice over IP or video connectivity. Everything is possible. Everyone is within reach.

Disaster recovery & business continuity

Having solid back-up for their own data centre, is often the reason why companies come knocking at LCL's door.

Chicago Metallic, which manufactures ceiling systems, is one such company.

European IT-manager Gunter Rombauts:

'Our Achilles heel was disaster recovery, but working with LCL has enabled us to discover many more opportunities.

We started by looking at the various independent data centres. LCL made us a fantastic proposal: they knew that there were lots of fibre optic cables on our doorstep. This opened up excellent prospects for a fully-fledged second site.

We needed extra-deep cabinets for our equipment and LCL were very flexible about that, too.

And the fact that we were given a separate area for our business-critical data was also great.

In actual fact, the LCL data centre is better equipped than our own computer room in terms of electricity supply.
And the same connectivity is a lot cheaper at LCL than it is with us in Wijnegem.'
